

Contributing to Wikipedia

Steps

- 1) Go to Wikipedia <https://www.wikipedia.org>
- 2) Create an account (top right) : No spaces nor special characters.
- 3) Add one (1) source (a bibliographic reference) to a Wikipedia page.
 - a) The Wikipedia page must be related to your research subject.
 - b) The source must be :
 - i) A scholarly article from a peer-reviewed journal.
 - ii) OR a scholarly- or university press book. NB : If you cite a book, include the page (range) where the information appears.
 - c) You must have actually read the book chapter or article.
- 4) E-mail your Wikipedia account ID to me. I can follow your changes. NB : If you already contribute to Wikipedia, just send your username.

How to add a source ?

1. Find where to add the source on the page (this activity may take the most time).
2. Locate the section or sentence to insert the source.
3. Open Edit, in the top banner (between Read and Search Wikipedia).
4. [If necessary, add a sentence for the citation.]
5. Place the cursor on the word to anchor the citation (single or double-click), then open "Cite on top.
 - a. If you have an ISBN or DOI, use Automatic and paste it in. Click Generate. Then Insert.
 - 1.If it is a book: Continue to Edit. In the box, scroll down to Page(s) cited and enter the page (range). Complete any other information you have as some important data is often missing. Finally, Apply changes.
 - b. If you do not have an ISBN or DOI: select Manual.
 - 1.If it is a book: select Book, complete as much of the form as you can. Don't forget to enter Page(s) cited with the page (range).
 - 2.If it is an article: open Journal and complete the form.
6. At the top right, select Publish changes.
7. IMPORTANT : In the Describe what you changed box indicate :
 - a. "Adding a source : academic book"
 - b. OR "Adding a source : peer-reviewed journal article"
